

Download Bruno Mars Figurative Language In Lyrics

Here's a wonderful video for teaching figurative language with pop songs. The image and sound quality are nice and clear, and you'll find great examples for simile, metaphor, hyperbole, personification, onomatopoeia, and idioms. If you read the lyrics and haven't been living in a closet your whole life, the lyrical meaning is obvious. Did some rails (coke), went to town and partied with some strippers who did more than shake their ass(ets). This song talks about the famine in Africa in the mid 80's, this song was entirely written by Michael Jackson and Lionel Richie. We are the World was sang by popular artists in the 80's and it was originally created as a fundraising to bring money to feed people in Africa who were suffering from famine.
