I just did an overhaul on my recently purchased 1995 Mitsubishi SL, and bought some of the lash adjusters from ebay and they work fine. Be sure to ask all pertinent questions or they'll send you the wrong item and you won't know until it's too late to return or get a refund. My car would start fine with the idle being low then after a long drive it would go higher and goes up when its in park. One time it stalled during stop and go traffic on the freeway and then acted like it was out of gas, the car would shake and was stuck on 20mph. Timing Belt: OEM is always a safe brand. SAGear is another or even the Gates brand is okay. The kevlar ones are very noisy and 99% of the time not needed (you are going to change them every 60k anyway so the non-kevlar last this long, save your money).
